

Maitre Gims, born Gandhi Djuna on May 6, 1986, in Kinshasa, Zaire (now the Democratic Republic of the Congo), is a prominent Congolese-French singer, rapper, and songwriter. He rose to fame as a member of the hip-hop group Sexion d'Assaut, which gained significant popularity in the late 2000s.

Gims moved to France at a young age and grew up in Paris. He developed a passion for music early on and pursued it alongside his education. In 2002, he joined Sexion d'Assaut, contributing to their success with his distinctive voice and musical style. The group's albums, such as "L'École des Points Vitaux" and "L'Apogée," were major hits in the French-speaking world.

In 2013, Gims embarked on a solo career, releasing his debut album "Subliminal," which featured chart-topping singles like "J'me tire" and "Bella." The album's success established him as a solo artist, and he continued to release hit albums, including "Mon cœur avait raison" (2015) and "Ceinture noire" (2018). His music blends hip-hop, pop, and R&B, appealing to a broad audience.

Maitre Gims is known for his versatility, unique style, and signature sunglasses. Beyond music, he has ventured into fashion and business. His contributions to the music industry have earned him numerous awards and a dedicated fan base worldwide.